What St. Paul says in the second reading sounds almost blasphemous. He speaks about filling in what is lacking in the suffering of Christ. Christ's suffering did indeed atone for the sins of all persons. What then is lacking? St Paul is saying that in the plan of salvation set up by Christ, we unite our suffering with the suffering of Christ, and then our suffering, endured with the right intention, helps atone for sin. Spiritual advisors admonish us to "offer up" our suffering. It is difficult to understand and accept, but it has been taught as a part of our religious thinking from the beginning of Christianity.

Collect: O God, who show the light of your truth to those who go astray, so that they may return to the right path, give all who for the faith they profess are accounted Christians the grace to reject whatever is contrary to the name of Christ and to strive after all that does it honor. Through our Lord Jesus Christ, your Son, who lives and reigns with you in the unity of the Holy Spirit, one God, for ever and ever.
